SUPPLEMENT TO REPORT NO.

1. Thawi Chulasap (also spelled Julasap), nephew of Pridi Banomyong and a member of the Free Thai during the war, has now been made wing commander in the Royal Siamese Air Force. Shortly before the war, he went to Singapore where the British demonstrated their defenses as an assurance to Siam that Malaya could be held. During the war, he directed Japanese bombers to these defenses. He also wrote a pro-Japanese article concerning General Chennault's "Flying Ducks" and told how best to combat the "Tigers."
2. Following his service in the Free Thai, Chulasap was decorated by the United States War Department and was sent to the United States Air Force Graduate School.
3. Chulasap has now deserted the Pridi faction and has become a Phibun man.
